Mini Card Games, Basic Math - by Jeff Friese. Most games for children use math and the basic rules. The mini-games are designed more like puzzles than card games. The games are designed to be played at home between two friends, while the games are more to use in a school setting. Some mini games have 3 or 4 steps rather than 6, and there are also games designed to be divided into separate sessions. The mini games come in all shapes and sizes - they may even contain coins, cards, or even little things. These mini games are really great for kids as well as adults.. The Clinton Foundation's charity has been hit with several subpoenas, a subpoena that apparently has been filed by New York State Attorney General Eric Schneiderman. The lawsuit filed by the lawyer for the Department of Justice says that the money the Clinton Foundation receives from foreign governments for non-profits "has an immediate impact" on the foundation's ability to function. The lawsuit has requested declarations by the lawyers for the Clinton Foundation, which are listed as defendants, and by foundation officials whether the foundation has been acting "in good faith" in meeting requirements for donor verification. A copy of the court-ordered document that led to the subpoenas was posted online Monday afternoon by the New York Post . The New York Post reported that the lawsuit is a complaint against the Democratic presidential nominee. In court papers Monday, the lawyers are seeking declarations that none of Clinton's charitable organizations, or anyone with "direct or indirect influence over" the Clinton Foundation, are complying with applicable laws, and also those that require the foundation to disclose "fundraising and other expenses" that it takes to fulfill its charitable work — including donations to foreign governments and other organizations that also have received foundation money. "We will argue as well that the foundation is a charitable organization not a political operation engaged in political activities," Steven after Williams writes in a draft memorandum.
